FEATURED TENANT: SOY TECHNOLOGIES

Soy Technologies, LLC is a privately owned specialty chemical manufacturer headquartered in the 1050 building, Unit 4. One of the original pioneers of soy-based chemistry, the company develops and markets environmentally safe chemicals such as Graffiti Removers, Stainless Steel Cleaners, and more, and sells to major manufacturers under private label. The company also has their own brand called SoyGreen®, and markets through commercial distributors. While the location here in Nicholasville processes all orders, samples, and ships small orders, the plant and all production is in Florence, Ky., as well as most warehousing and shipping.

According to Randy Frees, President/CEO, "We were developing green chemicals before 'green' was "in". Through our private label program, the chances are that if you see a soy based product in the market, our products, whether raw materials or finished formulations, are behind it in some way. We are proud of creating new chemistry that is now catching on."

The company has been located at 1050 Elizabeth Drive since January 2005. Check out their web site at www.soytek.com.

BUSINESS NEWS

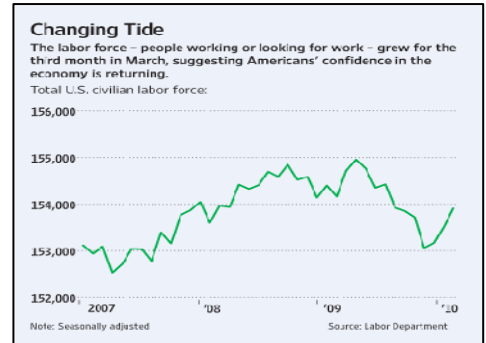

ECONOMIC CONFIDENCE RETURNS

Nine of the 11 primary employment sectors hired workers in March, with only the financial activities and information sectors shedding a combined 33,000 jobs. More than half of the positions added in March were short term, as the federal government hired 48,000 census workers, and temporary employment grew by 40,200 employees, the sixth consecutive monthly increase. In other sectors, education and health services expanded by 45,000 positions, while manufacturers hired 17,000 employees. Manufacturing employment has gained 45,000 workers this year, as factories have increased production in an effort to rebuild inventories purposely depleted during the recession.
